In claim 7, line 8, it is suggested that – having – be inserted in place of “with” for clarity.

The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 16-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Callahan '773 or Malinofsky '116 or Sanchez '487.

Callahan and Malinofsky and Sanchez each suggest the instantly claimed process of forming a powder mixture of titanium dioxide powder and a barium compound, such as barium carbonate, powder and calcining the powder mixture to form barium titanate. See col. 1 and example 1 of Callahan; col. 1 and claim 1 of Malinofsky; and col. 1 of Sanchez. The taught powder mixture of titanium dioxide and barium compound would place at least some of the titanium dioxide powder particles in contact with the barium compound, i.e., on the surfaces of titanium dioxide powder particles, because each is approximately the same size as they have been ground together.

The subject matter as a whole would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to select the portion of the prior art's range which is within the range of applicant's claims because it has been held to be obvious to select a value in a known range by optimization for the best results, see In re Boesch, 205 USPQ 215.

Applicant's arguments filed October 12, 2007 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant argues that the showing on instant pp. 8,9 of the Comparative examples demonstrates that a different product is achieved.

However the showing is not commensurate in scope with the instant claims which are of much broader scope. For example, the showing has various calcination temperatures whereas the instant claims require none. Also, the showing has the starting titanium oxide powder having a specific area of  $30\text{m}^2/\text{g}$  whereas the instant claims do not require same (instant claim 18 allows for the surface area to be as low as about  $5\text{m}^2/\text{g}$ ). Also, the showing requires the barium compound be barium carbonate having a surface area of  $12\text{m}^2/\text{g}$  whereas the instant claims do require same.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
